n surplus," as derived from the daily state ments of Treasury receipts and payments, the monthly ressury statements of October 1 possess more than saual interest. We endeavor to put them in such a form has they may prove instructive as well as interesting. The Treasury's ordinary receipts and expanditures for toptember and for three manths of 1886 and 1887, compare as hallows:

Here there seems to have been an accumulation of oney in the Treasury of $15,068,838 in September and t $17,649,738 since July 1. The fact is that the net mount of gold, silver and of legal-tender notes in the reasury on September 30 was $10,922,298 less than on ury on September 30 was $10,922,298 less than on at 31 and $6,149,617 less than on June 30. The coinage in September probably amounted to over 0,000, so that the Treasury actually paid out in mber nearly $14,000,000 more than its receipts. Treasury had not purchased a bend or prepaid accrest, other than that due October 1, during Seper, it would have gained only a small amount of but would have increased its surplus to the amount

The Treasury statement shows an increase in the sur-lus of $508,747, but that includes $5,704,610 of bonds urchased and interest prepaid, not yet adjusted in the conlation. If the Treasury had not purchased a bond puly 1 its gain in eash for the three mouths would thave exceeded $14,000,000, of which $7,000,000 and have been from the coinage of silver dollars. The Treasurer's statement shows losses from August 31 $443,747 gold, $3,547,327 legal-tender notes and $18,608 net silver. Including National bank notes the total cash in the Treasury September 30 was 11,338,515 less than on August 31. The deposits in Rational banks were $485,273 less, making the total reduction in available funds $11,823,788.

* Including $7,163,204 redeemed trade dollars.

The foregoing comparisons show that the net gold, silver and legal-tender notes on last september 30 were $3,036,139 less than on September 30, 1856. Calling the silver coinage $32,000,000 for the twelve menths, by the operations of the Treasury during the year $35,000,000 of legal money has been added to the circulation against a contraction of $30,559,951 non-legal-teader National bank notes. The net gold imports for the twelve months has exceeded $48,000,000. Hence there has been an expansion in legal money of $83,000,000, sgainst a contraction in non-legal-tender currency of $30,000,000.

The Controller of the Currency's mouthly statement shows that during September $2,801,439 of surrendered bank notes were redeemed from the fund deposited for that purpose and that $1,435,040 notes were issued to new banks and banks increasing their circulation; net reduction in National bank circulation for the month, $1,366,399. The withdrawal of bonds deposited to secure circulation was only $19,705 greater than the deposits for new circulation. The Controller's statement is as follows:
